CAPT. DAY WINS MATT. MEMORIAL HANDICAP

Capt. John Day, in his Corinthian "Sylph", captured first place in the first annual Memorial Day Handicap, run for Mattapoisett sailers. A fifteen boat fleet sailed the short 6 1/2 mile triangular course in ideal 10 to 15 m.p.h. breezes.

Norman Gorden's Manuwai was first to finish, in 1:31:49, followed by Al Furnans' Mira, 1:47 later. Handicap allowances, computed under Yachting Magazine's "One-of-a-kind" formula, gave Capt. Day the victory on corrected time. Second place was taken by Muddy Ruel.

The large turnout for this first race indicated a great interest in racing in Mattapoisett. It is expected that the Memorial Day race will

REPUBLICAN WORKSHOP

The second Republican Workshop will be held this Wednesday night at 7:30 P.M. in the Mattapoisett Town Hall. This workshop is under the auspices of the National Republican Committee and was initiated as an educational course by Representative Walter Judd. The town workshops are sponsored, directed and taught by the State Republican Committee.

At the last workshop meeting, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Heath, Jr. were elected as delegates to the pre-primary convention to be held in Boston on June 25. The delegates request all who wish to make their choices of candidates known to call them at 758-3568. This is one way the voter may have a part in nominating candidates to run in the November elections.

The committee also wants to remind all who sign nomination papers that the signatures must be exactly as written upon registration as a voter. If there is any doubt, the signee may contact Mrs. Lois Ennis, Town Clerk, for verification.

FOLK DANCING & ART SHOW

The Mattapoisett Center School was the scene of a lively exhibition of folk dancing as grades 1 through 3 performed for parents and friends at the school grounds. Under the direction of Mrs. Rhona Blasdale, the children performed a variety of American, Swedish, English, Danish, Belgian and German dances. Superintendent of Schools, Joseph Kunces, was an honored guest.

As part of the program, a "Little Louvre" was set up on the tennis court where an exhibition of art work was displayed. Work by artists of grades one through 6 was hung and some very exceptional paintings were displayed in all

GRANGE MEETING

The bi-monthly meeting of the Mattapoisett Subordinate Grange was held last Thursday in the Grange Hall. William Smith gave a report on the success of the auction held recently in the hall. Expression of thanks was given Edmond Valladoa who was the auctioneer; also to friends for their donations of articles and to the youth of Acushnet Grange for their friendly thoughtfulness to Mattapoisett Grange.

Mattapoisett Grange, who entered the National Grange Sears and Roebuck contest last year, used as its big project the painting of the exterior of the Grange Hall. Card parties, auctions, rummage sales, etc. are the financial means of completing this project. All this, in addition to other Community projects, in youth, conservation, agriculture and volunteer service to others will be in part of the report submitted to the National Grange Contest that ends in 1967.

Mrs. Ruby Barber, chairman of the Home and Community Service committee, reported on the afternoon whist party. She also announced a rummage sale to be held in the Grange Hall on Saturday, June 18th, from 9 A.M. to 1 P.M.

Susan Bence reported for the youth committee. Robert Ouellette received the lecturer's prize.

A Memorial Service was held by the worthy chaplain, Mrs. Rebecca Downing. Those taking part were Margarite Vaughn, Ruby Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Spirlet of New Bedford and Mark Harris.

Honored guests who spoke briefly were Edna Day, a member of the State Home and Community Service committee; Clayton Westgate of the

MATTAPOISETT GIRL SCOUTS ON PARADE

The club is planning to offer additional interest groups in the evening this coming year.

The reception will initiate a membership drive for the coming year.

GIRL SCOUT NEIGHBORHOOD ASSOC. MEET.

The final meeting of the year of the Mattapoisett Neighborhood Association was held at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Gordon Larcom of Hollywoods. Leaders and troop committee members representing Brownie, Junior and Cadette troops were present. Mrs. Alan Perkins, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the report, and Mrs. George Silsby was elected to serve as Neighborhood chairman for a term of three years. Tokens of thanks were presented to Mrs. Larcom, retiring Neighborhood chairman, and Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Frank Wacaser who have served as troop leaders for three years. Introduced as leaders were Mrs. John Drury, Mrs. William Croft and Mrs. Melvin Miller, Cadettes; Mrs. Peter Briggs, 6th grade; Mrs. Tore Saether, Mrs. Alfred Sears, Mrs. Joseph Mello, 4th grade. Leaders and assistants are still needed for Brownies, 5th grade and Cadettes (8th and 9th grades combined) in order that Scouting may be available to all girls in the Fall.

Plans for the Neighborhood were announced starting with training in September, available to everyone working with Scouts, including those with limited time to give or those with special skills who would be willing to teach a badge. Anyone desirous of serving in these capacities is asked to call the Neighborhood chairman as soon as possible in order that programs may be arranged for the coming year.

Many girls in Mattapoisett wanted Scouting last year but were left wanting because adults could not be found to help with troops. Scouting does not duplicate other activities. It complements the home, church and school, and emphasizes the high ideals for which young girls may strive. Not every adult can be a leader but many helping hands can make the job of the leader satisfying and rewarding. Anyone wishing to help may call Mrs. Silsby as soon as possible.

Other events include a pot-luck supper in September to be arranged by Mrs. Larcom, Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Perkins. Neighborhood meetings will be held on the fourth Tuesday of every other month starting with September. There will be a minimum of two evening meetings, with the remainder to be held mornings. The Father's mother did not remain a widow for any length of time. For her second husband she married Edward Hammond. So, while still at a very young age, Father acquired a stepfather. ways "Mr. Hammond" or "Uncle Ed". When I was young I never noticed, but as I grew older I became puzzled. The use of "Mr. Hammond" I could understand well enough. In those days children were taught to address their elders with formality. But why never use "stepfather"? And above all, why call his stepfather "Uncle Ed"? Then it dawned on me: Father's stepfather was his half-uncle Edward.

To explain: A generation earlier, when Father's grandfather Capt. Seth Mendell died in the 1830's, his widow, Jane Bullen Mendell remarried. Her second husband was Thomas Penn Hammond who lived in the lovely old house half a mile down the Neck Road, on the left just before the road forks at the marsh. By her second husband, Jane Bullen Mendell Hammond had five sons. These, of course, were half-brothers to her three Mendell sons by her first marriage. So, in marrying Edward Hammond, one of the second set, Mrs. John Mendell was marrying a half-brother of her dead first husband.

Another of the Hammond sons, and therefore another of Father's half-uncles, was Charles Hammond, who became a noted whaleman and who lived across the main road from Father's, i.e., across Route 6 from the entrance to the Neck Road. Charles Hammond was grandfather of Ralph Dunn, who died last year. Ralph and I have had many a technical discussion of just how many ways we were related to each other.

To finish up with the complications, Father's mother had a son by her second husband whom she named Arthur. (This finally got me--along with my half-brother and half-sisters--into the act. We also had a half-uncle.) Arthur Hammond was a well-known figure in Mattapoisett for many years.

Father's first, and never ending, memories of the farm were the animals and the chores. Like the hundreds of one-family farms that flourished in the New England countryside 100 years ago, this one had about a dozen cows, six or seven horses, a yoke of oxen, a flock of sheep, a goodly number of hogs, rabbits, and poultry of all kinds: hens, turkeys, ducks, pigeons, geese and guinea hens, to say nothing of dogs and cats. Every morning and every night all this livestock had to be fed and watered, the cows had to be milked, the stalls and cow barn cleaned, a seemingly never-ending list of jobs.

This meant that all hands turned out at five o'clock in the morning. From the time Father was six years old he was up at five and out in the barn helping his Uncle Ed feed the stock. As he grew to be eight and ten, he handled all these chores himself, leaving Mr. Hammond free to prepare his equipment for the day's occupations he engaged in. After the chores were finished, Father split wood and kindling until six when breakfast was ready--chopping out at the woodpile in good weather and long daylight seasons, in the barn by lantern-light in the winter. It was the hours spent in the barn in the cold blackness of early morning, the lantern's pale rays accentuating the dark of stalls and corners and mow in wavering shadow; the crunch of the animals' teeth as they chewed the hay and grain; the smell of their hides thickening the air; the thump and rub as they stamped and scratched--it was these that remained most vivid for 90 years.

After breakfast, there were more chores. The wood-boxes had to be filled--and again before supper. If it had snowed, paths had to be shovelled: to barn, to sheep shed, to poultry sheds. In cold weather the sheep were kept in a smaller pen close to the barn. They had to be fed and watered every morning, too. Usually, the eight-year old boy had no trouble with them, but for a while they had a big, mean, old ram. As long as Father faced him, all was well; but the second Father turned his back on him the old ram in one spring butted him face forward, sprawling on the ground, usually in the tub of water Father had just filled.

Afther these chores, if it were school season, Father got his school clothes on and trudged off with his dinner pail. But in the summer, he started a day's work, at first driving horses for all purposes and in all kinds of wagons to help Uncle Ed. Then, as he got a little bit older, he did much of the work, too: plowing, sowing, cultivating, haying--cutting, making-up, raking, helping to build the piles on the wagons, hauling the hay to the mow, stowing it--and the innumerable procedures of harvesting two score crops.

And sawing wood--sawing wood--sawing wood --all fall and all winter, hours and hours of sawing wood. For every meal that was cooked three times a day 365 days a year was cooked over a wood fire, and every particle of heat to warm the house was provided by a wood fire. There was never a time when there wasn't wood for him to saw, sometimes with another person with a two-man crosscut say; usually by himself with a bucksaw.

When Father was ten his Uncle Ed got a contract to deliver a large amount of gravel, and all summer long Father drove a two-horse tip-cart from daylight to dark for which job he received 15 cents a day. It was the first money he had ever earned, and pay days were proud moments.

His mother used to protest to her husband that he was working the young boy too hard. And he was. But so did all farmers work their boys hard in those days. Although Ed would slack off a little after she talked with him, some hard feeling inevitably resulted. But in his older years Father used to say he could understand his Uncle Ed better. Mr. Hammond didn't mean to treat the boy harshly or cruelly; but he was a worried, harrassed man. There were debts; he tried to run a large farm (at times it encompassed the entire present-day Reservation Golf Club and the land between it and Route 6); he also ran an ice business; he ran a wholesale slaughtering and butchering business. In those days farmers rarely saw much if any cash. If he and any hired man he could afford were busy elsewhere, who would do the farm work? (Next week -- The Neck School)
